Background Information:

. Coming from Vinlans as a young Minotaur to Kristophan trying to build a nest egg for his future, he joined the Champions' Guild, and after a few years, and a very impressive record, he was noticed by the Imperial Champions. He was offered a position as an Imperial Champion. He became bored with the monotony of fighting, and started to wander around the city. He came upon a small puppy one day, half starved and he brought him back with him. He cared for him, and any other stray he happened to find on his wanderings. Most he just released back onto the street, or into the wild, but Ironjaw remained with him. The Aurim WolfHound was weak, and timid when he first found him, and other Champions made fun of his interest in small "fluffy" things, and sometimes even tried to dine on his charges. They soon found out that dirt wasn't very tasty. Ironjaw: A wolf-like Dog standing about the height of a Great Dane, Gray in color with black feet, and muzzle, and one white ear.
